CHAPTER XXX.

THE next morning half the village dropped in to see where George Buckley had fallen. No one was able to say exactly how the thing had happened. The doctor, while reporting that George was practically out of danger, had forbidden any one to question the young man, and all sorts of speculations and rumors were in the air. It was not until late in the afternoon that even Hillyer had a full explanation, for it was not till then that he ran across the letter George had written. Several old men were in the office at the time. Hanks was there, and Bascom Truitt, wiping his eyes and vowing revenge on the miscreants who had so cowardly attacked a brave man.

Major Cranston, well wrapped in rugs and braced by pillows, had come down in a carriage with his negro manservant and sat with the rest, pale of face and weak looking, yet relieved to discover that some valuable papers he had left in Hillyer's keeping were intact. He had heard that the safe had been opened, and then he had heard that report contradicted and could only rest satisfied by coming himself, weak as he was. Hillyer had been strangely silent all the afternoon, but when he came upon George's letter he rose and began to talk in a voice that sank deep and shook with uncontrollable emotion.

"I've just found the key to it," he said, the letter in his hand, "and I'll bet you all will think well of that poor wounded boy when you know what I do. Last night three armed men slipped up on the right here in this office. I reckon, from what I gather, that they told 'im his daddy was a convict, an' folks in general didn't expect 'im to be honest nohow, an' that if he didn't open the safe they'd kill 'im an' bore in it themselves. He wasn't tempted one minute, but he wanted to leave a line to me before he died." Hillyer choked up and was silent for a moment. The group bent toward him, with working features and eyes distended. "So he told 'em all right, the jig was up, but they'd have to give 'im time to work out the combination. They 'lowed he was doin' it, but instead he was writin' a last word to me. He said he was tired o' livin' anyhow, the world was so down on 'im, an' that he'd rather die 'an take a hand in lettin' a gang o' thieves steal the savin's o' pore folks, an' so he said he was goin' to refuse. He said he hoped it would give the lie to the belief that he was dishonest because his old daddy had gone wrong. That was another matter he writ about, but that was private. I want to say, though, that George Buckley wasn't happy; he hadn't been happy for a long time. There are men in this world that think they are too good to mix an' mingle with men o' his stamp, but I've got such a darn contempt for that sort o' thing that I feel like slappin' the jaws o' folks that do in this day of enlightenment."

"Same here!" said Bascom Truitt. "They were all somehow looking at Major Cranston. Even Hanks had fixed him with a curious stare. The invalid stirred uneasily in his chair. One of his pillows fell to the floor, but the negro man behind him forgot to restore it. Negroes comprehend the most delicate workings of the Anglo-Saxon brain, and this black creature knew that his master had incurred the displeasure of his neighbors. Cranston seemed to feel that he ought to speak, but he did not like the expressions on the faces of Truitt and Hillyer, and their voices had rung with accusing defiance.

"What do you think ought to be done, Mr. Hanks?" he asked.

"I don't know," said Hanks. "I don't know."

"Well," ventured Cranston, interlarding his white, thin fingers, "I see no harm in wiring the governor to offer a reward for the arrest of the men. The editor of the Citizen told me as I came down that he'd publish anything free of charge. If the governor would offer $500, or even three—"

"Governor!" snorted Truitt. "Do you reckon I'd go to that cowardly skunk to help in a matter like this? Ef we hadn't a ble here at home to stand behind a boy that offered his life to save the money o' the widows an' orphans in this county we ort to be whipped."

"Huh!" ejaculated Hanks suddenly. "Five hundred dollars for the man that shot George Buckley. I'll give $5,000 in cash out of my own pocket! You tell the editor that for me, an' tell 'im the quicker he prints it the better it'll suit me. Tell 'im to git out an extra an' handbills an' send 'em on hosses an' trains in all directions. I'll foot the bill." He was standing now, and his glance was bearing down significantly on the major. "I never met a better man than George Buckley. He's worth more to the community than forty-seven durted bosom ring politicians. Seems to me I heard some fool woman or other say that was a few people in this town that tried to hold their heads above 'im on account o' his affliction. By gum, then sort ud have to climb a powerful high mountain to look over that boy's head, an' don't you forget it."

"That's the ticket!" said Truitt, following Hanks outside.

"Seems to me," said Cranston, his proud lip quivering as he turned to Hillyer, "that I'm being hit at. I didn't come down here to talk over my—my family matters with anybody."

"We are all worked up in sympathy for George," Hillyer said coldly. "But, knowing what I do about the hearts o' yore daughter an' George Buckley, I feel like tellin' you to go to the deuce with yore notions o' family honor, Major Cranston."

"I have not said I wanted to discuss the matter with you," retorted the major sharply.

"I don't care whether you want to discuss it or not," answered Hillyer. "You are blind as a bat. The man you are trying to make yore gal marry is a dirty, sneaking coward, an'—"

"Why don't you tell him these things?" broke in Cranston angrily.

"He's been told twice to his teeth by friends o' mine an' tuck it like a whip-pup."

"You mean to tell me that Governor Telfare let any man insult him without resenting it?"

"Yes; he was low enough to meet George Buckley on yore own lawn an' order him away as if he had been a dog. The boy cussed 'im for everything he could think of, all o' which yore brag man took like an egg suckin' dog. After that Bas Truitt went to Atlanta an' told 'im what he thought o' 'im in his own house an' then pulled his ears good an' sound an' left 'im. That's the man you are tryin' to link to yore lordly name—a man who to-day, accordin' to reliable information, is a bankrupt an' don't own the shirt on his back—a man who never had any standin' an' only got into office as a dark horse by the skin o' his teeth when the party disagreed between two respectable men. You want the truth; I'm givin' it to you. Yore gal knows what he is an' despises 'im from the bottom of her heart. She loves George Buckley, an' she would marry 'im to-day if she wasn't afraid yod'd drop dead of heart disease. I don't believe yore heart's got that sort o' disease. Dr. Jobe says you eat too much an' that it's nothin' but yore old liver."

Cranston was as white as the pillow behind him.

"Can you prove that Telfare is—is insolvent?" he asked.

"Yes, I can."

"And that he refused to fight under an insult like you say Buckley and Truitt gave him?"

"Yes."

"Well, I'd like to have the proof."

"I'll git it fer you," said Hillyer. "I hain't got no time fer that now. I see Kenner comin' from home. He'll know how the pore boy is."

"He's doin' fine," Kenner declared as he entered a moment later. "The danger is entirely over. It's just good luck he needs now. Lord, he had a close shave!"

Hillyer's face melted into tenderness. Reaching out his hand to Cranston, he said impulsively:

"We can't afford to quarrel at such a time, major. I'm so happy over that boy's escape that I can't entertain hard feelin'."

"Well, I'm sure I wish him no harm," said the Virginian as he gave his arm to his servant and turned from the room.

"You got that news straight, did you, Jim?" asked the merchant eagerly.

"From Jobe hisself. Oh, George 'll pull through!"

"An' thank God for it," replied Hillyer reverently as he sank into his chair.

"We certainly have had a time of it this week," said Kenner. "Just think how old Truitt's suffered."

"An' I'm thankful he's doin' so well," said Hillyer. "They told me this mornin' at his house that he was much better."

"Better?" cried Kenner. "Why, he's dead!"

"Dead? Oh, no, Jim—no, no!"

"Yes, he's gone, Mr. Hillyer. They come a-runnin' fer Jobe about two hours ago, but he didn't git that in time. They thought he was goin' to make the rifle, but he tuck a bad spell all o' a sudden, an' that wasn't no holdin' 'im back."

Hillyer turned his back to the speaker and leaned his head on his hand. Kenner looked at him curiously for a minute; then he said:

"I 'lowed I'd say, Mr. Hillyer, that I know how to do George's work, an' I'd take it as a favor to keep it up till he's able to come down."

But Hillyer was not listening.

"I say, I 'lowed"—But the merchant was still inattentive, and Kenner left the room, his eyes fixed in a puzzled stare on the old man at the desk.

"I'll swear he's a quar old duck," Kenner mused as he walked toward the compass, his hands in his pockets. "I never know how to take 'im."

JAPS IN PURSUIT

Kuropatkin's Army Is Now
Hot-Footing In Direction of Mukden.

LIAO YANG DESERTED

Russians Give Up a Hopeless Stronghold and Are Hastening to Their Northern Base.Both Armies So Battle Worn That Suspension of Fighting Seems Imperative.

Tokio, Sept. 5.—Field Marshal Oyama, telegraphing at 9 o'clock Sunday morning, says: "After the fighting of last night and this morning Liao Yang fell into our hands. Our casualties are believed to be very heavy. No report has been received concerning conditions on the right bank of the Taitse river."

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—There is bitter disappointment today, probably the keenest of the whole land campaign, over the situation at the front. Up to Liao Yang the retreating from and the abandonment of positions had been expected, and that much the public and the officials thought they knew of General Kuropatkin's plan of campaign. Had Liao Yang been abandoned without a fight the public at least would have looked forward patiently to a decisive stand at Mukden, but after a desperate battle with victory for the instant apparently in sight, to find Liao Yang abandoned, its immense stores captured or destroyed and the retreat continued under the most adverse conditions, severely tries public confidence in the commander-in-chief.

At this hour even the authorities know little more than what has already been given to the public. There is still much doubt as to whether Kuropatkin is continuing his retreat, or whether indeed, he has been able to do so. The situation as it is known to date is that the Russian army is south of the branch railway connecting Yentai station, ten miles northeast of Liao Yang, with the Yentai mines, where fierce fighting has been in progress. Actual fighting has been suspended for the moment, the armies probably resting after their terrific and continuous exertions of the past ten days, the longest single battle in history, and it will depend upon their respective recuperative powers as to which will first be able to resume activity.

The country is ill suited to military operations. It is flatter and more open than the region south of Liao Yang, but is covered at this season with dense fields of Chinese corn, growing higher than a man on horseback. It is more suited to surprise tactics and to offensive operations than to an orderly retreat.

One feature of the situation, however, has apparently been overlooked by the local critics in their over eagerness to chronicle a decisive engagement, namely, that Kuropatkin is still in command of the railway and has saved a majority of the rolling stock. This is chiefly in requisition at present for transportation of the wounded, but Mukden with strong defenses is less than twenty miles north of Yentai. What force Kuropatkin is holding in reserve there, even the authorities do not exactly know, but it is believed that it must be considerable, while the European reinforcements, which have been rushing east for weeks past, are pouring in there daily.

The Japanese army is confessedly exhausted and is getting further from its base of supplies. If it reaches Mukden without dealing Kuropatkin a crushing blow—and Field Marshal Oyama seems to be not able as yet to envelop the Russian force—the Japanese will find themselves in front of a fresh and strongly defended city, where the Russians will be sure of a warm welcome and renewed supplies and against which it seems impossible that the Japanese commander will be able to hurl his brave but worn-out and possibly starving forces. It is possible that even now Russian reinforcements may be descending from the north to aid their retreating comrades at Mukden, which is less than two days' ordinary march distant, even ignoring the railway.

TOKIO IS JOYFUL

Decorations at Japanese Capital Honor
Oyama's Successes.

Tokio, Sept. 5.—Beyond Field Marshal Oyama's dispatch reporting the occupation of Liao Yang and the commencement of General Kuropatkin's turning movement against the Russian left, nothing further concerning the battle of Liao Yang has reached Tokio today. Neither the number of Russians who succeeded in escaping northward nor the number encompassed by General Kuropatkin's turning movement is known here. The severity of the Russian defeat hinges largely on Kuropatkin's movement. If successful the number of Russian prisoners will be large. The meager reports received indicate that the soldiers of both armies went to the limit of human endurance and suffered terribly. It was impossible constantly to supply them with food and water, and the men have fought for days past starving and parched with thirst.

Although full details are lacking the duration of the fighting, the numbers engaged and the losses so far reported indicate that Liao Yang will prove to be one of the greatest battles of history. The dispatch received from Field Marshal Oyama announcing the fall of Liao Yang had the effect of cheering all of the subjects of the mikado. Throughout the rejoicing here following the earlier successes of Japanese arms at Liao Yang the more thoughtful people feared the results of the exposure to which the right wing of General Kuropatkin's army was subjected, and it was held possible that the strength of the Liao Yang fortifications would permit the withdrawal of the bulk of the Russian forces there. Even now there is doubt concerning the number of Russians who have escaped, but there is no doubt about the character of the victory at Liao Yang.

Tokio is brilliantly decorated and joyful crowds are parading the streets cheering the exploits of Field Marshal Oyama and Generals Oku and Nodzu.

THE RUSSIAN POSITION

Retreat Has Carried Kuropatkin Nearly to Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—General Stakelberg's First Siberian army corps, which was reported Saturday by General Kuropatkin as having been cut off to the westward of Liao Yang, has been safely extricated. General Kuropatkin has telegraphed that the greater portion of his army is now south of Yantai, about ten miles north of Liao Yang, and that the other portion of it has crossed the Taitse river and has taken up a position on the right bank.

This message, which was received by the emperor early Sunday morning, threw a more hopeful light on the position of the Russian army, and the authorities gave sighs of relief.

There is no attempt, however, to conceal the gravity of the situation. In view of the absence of news regarding what has happened since. It is not clear from the latest telegram whether the Russians are continuing their retreat or if they have been compelled to face their foe.

The gloomy report telegraphed by the Russian commander-in-chief in the early stages of the night of Saturday last and his bitter reproaches against General Stakelberg are attributed to his chagrin over the failure of his offensive plans. General Kuropatkin now telegraphs that his only serious losses are confined to Major General Orloff's detachment, which was guarding the left flank at Yantai. This detachment consisted of mixed European detachments and was suddenly attacked by Japanese infantry and artillery concealed in the tall Chinese corn and grass. The Russians seem to have lost their heads and to have retreated precipitately. The Japanese inflicted great slaughter, one of General Orloff's regiments losing 1,500 men.

No details are given of the escape of General Stakelberg's corps from the clutches of the enemy, but it is believed that it owes its safety to the neglect or the inability of the Japanese to follow up their advantage. General Stakelberg was allowed to cross the river and came up with the main army in time to enable the shattered remnants of Major General Orloff's detachment to retreat. This exploit is likely to condone General Stakelberg's disobedience, but unless the emperor forgives him he will have to appear before a court-martial, and probably will lose his command. The war office is able to make the reassuring statement that the Russian retreat from Liao Yang did not involve the loss of guns, and it also declares that the abandoned stores at Liao Yang were set on fire before the Russians crossed the Taitse river.

Irretrievable Defeat.

Paris, Sept. 5.—The battle of Liao Yang is absorbing public attention, and the tone of the French military critics has undergone marked change. M. Bernet, the military expert of the Temps, who heretofore has been confident that Kuropatkin's strategy would win the day, now makes comment indicating his belief that Kuropatkin's defeat is irretrievable, and he says this means that Russia will lose Manchuria and that it will be impossible to relieve Port Arthur.

Japanese Reinforcements.

Chefoo, Sept. 5.—Fourteen regiments will leave Tokio during the week to replace the men lost outside Port Arthur alone. The losses at this point are estimated at 25,000.

Reinforcements Wanted.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—Emperor Nicholas has received a telegram from General Kuropatkin asking for the immediate dispatch to the far East of the Sixth army corps.

Kuropatkin Near Mukden.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—It is reported here that General Kuropatkin has arrived at Tieling, eighteen miles south of Mukden.

One Day's Losses.

St. Petersburg, Sept. 5.—The Russian losses before Liao Yang on Sept. 2, as officially computed, were 3,200.

Two Women Killed.

Gallen, Mich., Sept. 5.—Mrs. George W. Chase, aged sixty-four, and Mrs. Henry Smith, aged seventy, sisters, were killed by a Michigan Central passenger train here Sunday. One of them was crossing a cattle-guard when her shoe caught in the guard. The other ran to her assistance and both were struck by the engine and the bodies hurled thirty feet in the air.

New York Tenement Burns and Fourteen Persons Perish.

THE STAIRWAY CUT OFF

Fire Started in Hall From Exploding Lamp and Luckless Inmates
Were Doomed.In Addition to Those Burned to Death
Nearly a Score Were Injured.

New York, Sept. 5.—Fourteen persons were killed and nearly a score injured in a fire in a five-story double tenement in Attorney street at an early hour Sunday morning. It was one of the worst fires in the loss of human lives that has occurred on the East Side in several years, although the property loss was slight.

The dead include four women, one man and nine children, ranging in age from three months to twelve years. Many of the injured were taken to hospitals, and it is thought that several of these will die. Among the injured were five firemen who were on a fourth-floor balcony when it fell with them.

The small number of men among the killed and injured was due to the fact that most of the men who lived in the building, following the Attorney street custom in hot weather, were asleep on the roof, while but few of the women and children were there. Those on the roof were unable to escape by descending through the burning building, and made their way to safety over neighboring roofs. Meanwhile the members of their families who had remained in their rooms found escape cut off and perished throughout the structure.

The fire started about 3 o'clock in the morning, and there was considerable delay in sending in an alarm, although the district is one of the most thickly populated in the crowded East Side of New York. When the firemen reached the scene some of the tenants were jumping from the windows and from the ends of fire-escapes that reached only to the second floor; others were crouching in the smoke in the small rooms and narrow halls.

The fire is supposed to have been caused by the explosion of a lamp that had been left to light the hall on the second floor, and the sleeping tenants were not aroused until the hallway was ablaze and escape through the building cut off.

The fire was soon extinguished and the search for the dead began. Most of the dead were found on the two upper floors. While the search of the building was going on four firemen were at work on a fourth-floor balcony when it gave way. Another fireman on the balcony on the floor below was also carried down and was probably fatally injured. The other four were badly hurt, but will recover.

Boston Police Adopt New Method of Subduing a Maniac.

Boston, Sept. 5.—In a sudden fit of insanity Sunday Mrs. Minnie McKenzie tried to kill her husband at her home on Falcon street, East Boston, then shot and fatally wounded Patrolman Alfred M. Sturdivant, and finally barricaded herself in the front room of the tenement, where she remained for more than five hours standing off a squad of ten policemen. She was finally captured by the use of germicide injected through holes in the barricaded door.

When overcome by the fumes she was found to be armed with two large revolvers and had a large amount of ammunition. During the barricade she fired more than fifty shots, many going wide into a crowd of 5,000 which had gathered about the house.

COUNTY CONVENTION.

The republican county convention at Brownstown Saturday was the largest and most enthusiastic convention held in Jackson county for years. The splendid spirit of the convention speaks well for the republican party in the county. Every township was well represented and all were pleased with the work of the convention.

The ticket nominated is excellent. It is made up entirely of strong, honest and capable men—men who have the confidence of the people of the county, and as public officers would serve the people unselfishly. Such are the kind of men to entrust with public affairs. All can support and conscientiously work for such a ticket.

The convention was fortunate too in having Hon. J. Frank Hanly, our candidate for governor present. His speech was an able and eloquent argument in favor of republican doctrines. Mr. Hanly is a convincing speaker and he will make just as good a governor as he is a speaker. The republicans of Jackson county are now ready for the campaign.

DIED.

CORYELL.—Edwin R. Coryell died Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock at his home in Jennings county, two miles east of Uniontown. Mr. Coryell was born in Steuben county New York, Feb. 1 1828, making his age 76 years, 7 months and 4 days. He came to this county with his parents and since that time resided in the same neighborhood. In November 1856 he married Elizabeth Foster, who survives him. Their children are Hector Coryell, of Louisville, Mrs. J. Q. Foster, O. M. and G. A. Coryell, and Mrs. A. W. Rodgers. He leaves one brother, Lewis, of Osceola, Wisconsin. Mr. Coryell was a widely known and useful citizen and every body who knew him was his friend. He was a member of the Baptist church.

Funeral at 10 a. m. Tuesday from the residence conducted by Rev. I. C. Overman. Burial in the family cemetery on the home place.

Shot From Ambush.

Mahlon Wells, who was shot from ambush along the Big Four near North Vernon, Saturday was a son-in-law of Mrs. John Williams of this city. He was a bridge carpenter with headquarters at Cincinnati. He was about 35 years old and leaves a wife and two sons. His family lived on the farm north of North Vernon.

Who fired the shot or what the motive was, are yet unknown, but there are hopes that the mystery will be solved. Mr. Wells was on his way home walking along the Big Four track when he was fired upon. Two or three shots were fired. Wells walked a few hundred yards after he was shot to the home of William Barton and reported that he was shot by some one in the underbrush. He then fell to the floor and died shortly afterward.

Irish Comedy.

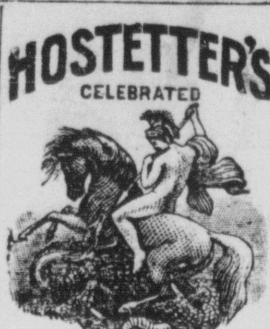

It is seldom indeed that so uniformly good a company appears in this section, or that carries so many new and novel effects as the one which will be seen in "The Game Keeper," Rowland and Clifford's beautiful Irish comedy drama, billed for an appearance in this city Friday night, Sept. 9. Thos. J. Smith is the bright particular star of the company, he is a quiet, natural comedian and the fortunate possessor of a true ringing voice and sings his songs with rare expression.

Mrs. Jane Combs, of Cincinnati avenue says: "I procured Doan's Kidney Pills from C. W. Milhouse's drug store. Two members of my family suffered greatly from their back and kidneys and insisted on their taking a course of the treatment. They did so and were benefited. I also used the remedy myself with good results. Doan's Kidney Pills strengthened the kidneys, remove backache, and banish annoyances arising from difficulty with the kidney secretions. I recommend them heartily to others in need of a reliable kidney remedy."

Shall the Debt be Incurred?

Tomorrow the electors will vote for or against the school debt.
The school trustees have asked authority to issue bonds to be paid within ten years, in such sum as may be necessary not to exceed $37,500 for the purpose of erecting a separate high school building just north of the old combination building, intending as soon as practicable to remove the oldest part of the present building and remodel or rebuild the south wing for grades. Shall the debt be incurred?

Rheumatism

Is Not a Skin Disease.

Most people have an idea that rheumatism is contracted like a cold, that the damp, chilly air penetrates the muscles and joints and causes the terrible aches and pains, or that it is something like a skin disease to be rubbed away with liniment or drawn out with plasters; but Rheumatism originates in the blood and is caused by Urea, or Uric Acid, an irritating, corroding poison that settles in muscles, joints and nerves, producing inflammation and soreness and the sharp, cutting pains peculiar to this distressing disease.

Exposure to bad weather or sudden chilling of the body will hasten an attack of Rheumatism after the blood and system are in the right condition for it to develop, but have nothing to do with the real true causes of Rheumatism, which are internal and not external.

Liniments, plasters and rubbing will sometimes reduce the inflammation and swelling and ease the pain for a time, but fail to relieve permanently because they do not reach the seat of the trouble. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it attacks it in the blood, and the Uric Acid poison is neutralized, the sluggish circulation stimulated and quickened, and soon the system is purified and cleansed, the aching muscles and joints are relieved of all irritating matter and a lasting cure of this most painful disease effected.

S. S. S. is a harmless vegetable, unequalled as a blood purifier and an invigorating, pleasant tonic. Book on Rheumatism will be mailed free.

Great Piece of Stage Mechanism.

Much interest has been manifested concerning the mechanical methods of the thrilling chariot race employed in the Klaw & Erlanger Co.'s stupendous production of General Wallace's famous religious spectacle, "Ben-Hur" which is to be again presented at English's Opera House, Indianapolis, Sept. 12th to 24th with matinees on Wednesday and Saturday each week.

Two years ago "Ben-Hur" enjoyed a run of three weeks in Indianapolis. At that time many went from this city to see it and it is more than probable the attendance this time will be equally as large.

In this great arena contest the spectator sees eight horses galloping at break-neck speed and straining every muscle to gain the advantage in the race within the amphitheatre. Behind each quartet of horses is a Roman chariot. The wheels revolve rapidly; the chariots lurch and sway; and the flaming beribboned garments of the drivers flutter behind them, adding intensity to the realism of the scene. The illusion is still further increased as the interior wall of the amphitheatre moves along and the dust flies in blinding clouds beneath the crushing wheels of the chariots. The clatter of the hoofs of the horses and the rattle of the chariots are distinctly heard.

Elaborate mechanism and applications of electricity produce this great effect. The mechanism of the two great cradles, twenty feet in length and fourteen feet wide, which are movable back and forth on railways, is supported by a bridge structure capable of twenty tons. The tops of the cradles are two inches above the level of the stage. Each cradle bears the four horses and the chariot of each contestant. On each cradle there are four runways or treadmills of hickory slats two inches wide and covered with rubber; they are twelve feet long and two and a half feet wide. On each of these treadmills a horse is secured by steel cable traces, which hold him in place and prevent him from moving forward off the runways. As each horse gallops, the treadmill revolves under his feet, thereby eliminating the forward pressure created by the impact of his hoofs, which would force him ahead on an immovable surface. By this mechanical arrangement it is possible for the horses actually to gallop with all their speed within the space of their own length. It is considered the most realistic effect ever seen upon the stage.

INDIANA'S GREAT DAY.

Immense Gathering Looked For at World's Fair, September 1st.

Present indications point to a record-breaking day at St. Louis Thursday, September 1st, when the celebration of Indiana Day takes place at the World's Fair. The large number of Indiana people intending to be present at this great State function is shown by the advance requisitions for tickets to St. Louis the ensuing fortnight. The special low fares from Indiana to St. Louis over the Pennsylvania Vandallia Lines has stimulated such interest that every provision is made for handling larger crowds of excursionists than at first expected.

Representatives of Indiana interests having exhibits in the Exposition, public officials and citizens generally who have already signified their intention of being at the greatest of all fairs on Indiana Day show that the next few days will see the heaviest movement from Indiana to St. Louis since the opening of the World's Fair. Governor Durbin and his staff will leave Indianapolis for St. Louis Wednesday, August 31st, over the Vandallia Line. On the evening of the same day, the Newboys' Band of the Indianapolis News, consisting of about eight members, will also go over the Vandallia Line to St. Louis, the youngsters going to the World's Fair as the guests of the State.

W. W. RICHARDSON, Assistant General Passenger Agent of the Pennsylvania Vandallia Lines, has received more inquiries at his office in Indianapolis from intending World's Fair visitors in the last week than at any time since the St. Louis Exposition was thrown open, which is taken as the most striking indication of the widespread interest manifested in the great celebration in honor of Indiana.

KIDNEY DISEASES CAUSE ONE-THIRD OF THE TOTAL DEATHS.

When the Kidneys fail to perform their functions properly by not straining out the poisonous waste matter from the blood as it passes through them, the poisons are carried by the circulation to every part of the body, deranging the different organs. This causes heart trouble, stomach trouble, sluggish liver and a host of other ills, all due to deranged Kidneys.

FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE

corrects irregularities and cures Kidney and Bladder diseases in every form, tones up the whole system, and the diseases that have resulted from disordered Kidneys disappear, because the cause has been removed. Commence taking FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE at the first sign of danger. Do not risk having Bright's Disease or Diabetes.

CURED OF BRIGHT'S DISEASE.
Mr. Robert O. Burke, Elmore, Saratoga Co., N. Y., writes: "I am glad to have an opportunity of telling what magnificent results I have had from using FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE after having tried other advertised medicines and several physicians. Before I began it I had to get up from 12 to 20 times each night to relieve my bladder. I was all bloated up with dropsy and my eyesight was so impaired that I could scarcely see one of my family across the room. In fact, I was so badly used up that I had given up hope of living when I was urged by a friend to try FOLEY'S KIDNEY CURE. One 5-cent bottle worked wonders, and before I had taken the third bottle the superfluous flesh had gone, as well as all other symptoms of Kidney trouble. My friends were surprised that I was cured, as they all thought I was going to die. Every few days some one comes from miles away to learn the name of the wonderful medicine that cured me of Bright's Disease, and not one that has tried it has failed to be benefited."

More Riots.

Disturbances of strikers are not nearly as grave as an individual disorder of the system. Overwork, loss of sleep, nervous tension will be followed by utter collapse, unless a reliable remedy is immediately employed. There's nothing so efficient to cure disorders of the liver of kidneys as Electric Bitters. It's a wonderful tonic, and effective nerve and the greatest all around medicine for run down systems. It dispels nervousness, rheumatism and neuralgia and expels malaria germs. Only 50c, and satisfaction guaranteed by W. F. Peter Drug Co.

GOLDEN NUGGETS FOR SALLOW PEOPLE

CAMPAIGN NOW OPEN

Manly Starts the Ball Rolling at Fairmount.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—The Republicans formally opened their speaking campaign today. J. Frank Manly, the nominee for governor, who is to lead the fight for the state ticket, spoke this afternoon at Fairmount at the Labor Day exercises, and tonight will make his opening speech. It will not be his first speech of the campaign by any means, but it will be the starter under the direction of the state committee, which will have charge of his itinerary from now on. Congressman James E. Watson and a score of well-known Republican speakers were scheduled to speak today or tonight, and within the next two weeks over a hundred spellbinders will be at work for the Republican ticket.

Evidently there will be much of the picturesque in the coming campaign, for Chairman Goodrich announced on his return from a conference with Harry S. New and others at the Western headquarters in Chicago that Ople Read, the novelist; Corporal Tanner, Secretary of War Taft, Secretary of the Treasury Shaw, Senators Hopkins, Kittredge and Foraker, and Speaker Cannon are to appear in Indiana during the next thirty days. Read has never appeared in the stump in Indiana, but owing to the popularity of his books his coming will be awaited with interest. Corporal Tanner is an old-time favorite and Secretary Shaw convinced the party here two years ago that he is a fine campaigner. Secretary Taft will be a new one for Indiana, and no one will receive a more hearty welcome than Uncle Joe Cannon, who is to make four or five more Indiana speeches. Among the Democratic picturesque characters to come soon will be Bourke Cochran, ex-Senator Towne, Senator Daniels of Virginia, John Sharp Williams of Mississippi, and last but not least, William Jennings Bryan. At both state committee rooms it is said that this will be the greatest speaking campaign attempted in Indiana.

In a way this will be the most important week of the campaign, for the sixty-day poll is to be taken. The Republican and Democratic state committees have made elaborate preparations for it, and it will furnish them with the first accurate information regarding the situation. It is an easy matter for the local party bosses to run down to Indianapolis and tell the state chairman that things are out of sight in their respective counties or townships. Frequently the chairman is misled if he is too strong a partisan, but this kind of talk don't fool the old-timers, who want figures. Black and white is what counts with them, so they have naturally paid special attention to the arrangements for the poll. Two and four years ago the Democratic organization was so poor that there were precincts in many counties where no poll was taken, and hence no arrangement could be made for getting out the vote on election day, but Secretary Reiley of the state committee said today that the organization is now in fine shape and that there is not a precinct in which the poll will not be taken Thursday.

It was reported today that Chairman Goodrich has completed his executive committee and that it consists of Wm. Geake of Fort Wayne, Adam Beck of Huntington, L. G. Rothschild of this city, H. C. Starr of Richmond and Union Banner Hunt of Winchester. The executive committee is perhaps the most important adjunct to the state committee, as it is called into conference with the chairman and secretary right from the start in managing things. Owing to its importance the various elements of the party were very desirous of representation. Starr, it is understood, will be the chairman of the committee. He is the only member of the old committee to be reappointed.

The Democratic state committee opened its speakers' bureau this forenoon. It is in charge of Michael Ryan of this city, formerly a well-known Ninth district leader. He will have charge of the routing of the various speakers. John W. Kern, candidate for governor, is to speak at Portland Wednesday at the Eighth district congressional convention and at Butler on Friday. Beginning next week he will probably be active every day and night until the election.

Put Stones in His Pockets.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—Charles L. Hays, secretary and treasurer of the Royal Garment company, was found dead in Fall creek near the east entrance of the fair grounds. It is believed he committed suicide because of business difficulties. A bottle of morphine was found in one pocket and two stones in the pockets above his breast, which strengthens the suicide theory.

Requisition for Kentuckian.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—Governor Durbin has issued a requisition on Governor Beckham of Kentucky for the return to Grandview, Spencer county, of Ernest Simpson, who is wanted on a charge of arson. He is now in jail at Hawsville, Hancock county, Ky.

Drowned in the Wabash.

Lafayette, Ind., Sept. 5.—While bathing in the Wabash river about eight miles south of Lafayette Ed Green of Attica went to the bottom and was drowned. Green was seized with cramps and went down before aid could reach him.

STATE NEWS NOTES

Matters of Interest to Hoosiers Briefly Presented Here.

A GOOD FAIR SEASON

World's Exposition Has Interfered Little With Indiana's County Exhibitions of Resources.

The Attendance at These Events Has Been Good and a Fine Interest Manifested.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—Since early in July the county fair season has been on in Indiana. During August thirty-four of these exhibitions were held. In eleven counties fairs were held last week and nineteen more will take place before September closes. Four counties will hold fairs in October. The total number of these fairs and race meetings in Indiana this year will be sixty-seven. The state board of agriculture has been gathering reports of the county events and finds that the attendance has been better than usual. The farmers have taken a lively interest and sent their best horses, cattle and other livestock.

MADE SURE OF IT

Pike County Couple Take No Chances on Doubtful Wedding.

Petersburg, Ind., Sept. 5.—Learning by chance three days after their marriage that the wedding was illegal, William Wilson and Miss Sarah Seibers hastened to have the ceremony performed in a manner that was binding.

Last Wednesday the couple, who reside twenty-six miles south of this city, went to Mt. Carmel Ill., and obtained a marriage license, returning to their homes to be married. The ceremony was performed at 9 o'clock that night by the Rev. John Ragle. Saturday they were informed that an Illinois marriage license could not be used in Indiana, and they went to Mt. Carmel on the first train and were married by the Rev. F. H. Knight, an Illinois minister.

Indianapolis Lawyers Prosper.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—The outlook for abundant business in the Marion county courts, even from the first day of the September term, "looms up" in unusually large proportions, and the dockets of the four civil courts already bear the entries of an enormous number of cases awaiting trial. As approximated, there is an average of 500 cases awaiting consideration in each of the three rooms of the superior court and over 600 in the circuit court, not including the big grist of controversies, settlements, etc., pertinent to estates and the like to be considered by Probate Commissioner Walker. A year of heavy litigation is anticipated by both the bench and bar.

Revenge Was His Motive.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—The assailant who so nearly murdered Sergeant Green Hagerman Friday night has been identified as Herman A. Simon. The motive for the deed is assigned as one of vengeance, as Simon was arrested, together with several others, by Sergeant Hagerman about a year ago in a raid on a house on Maryland street. Simon is in a serious condition from the pistol wound inflicted by Sergeant Hagerman, and it is believed he will die. Sergeant Hagerman is resting easily. His wounds are painful and it is not known yet just how serious his injuries may prove to be.

Learning American Ways.

Indianapolis, Sept. 5.—Six native Filipino boys, the eldest nineteen and the youngest sixteen, keen-looking and well-groomed little fellows, have arrived in Indianapolis to become students in the Manual Training high school. They came to America last October and entered school at Santa Barbara, Cal. The boys will remain three more years in American schools. They are appointed by the department of education in the Philippines and are allowed $500 a year each during their stay in the United States. Their transportation is free.
